THE CIVIL LITIGATION FIRM

Brain Injury Litigation

Brain injury litigation is a specialized personal injury practice area requiring experienced counsel with an in-depth understanding of brain injury science. Even a minor fender bender with no initial reported injuries may lead to a closed head injury claim, like a concussion, including allegations of permanent cognitive deficits, inflated future loss of earning capacity claims, and padded life care plans. These claims are more expensive to litigate and can lead to increased exposure to defendants who are not equipped with the knowledge and experience necessary to properly defend them. Harman Claytor's lawyers have extensive experience defending these claims in discovery and at trial. We are up to date on the relevant brain injury studies, cutting-edge diagnostic testing, and appropriate defenses, and we partner with a team of highly qualified experts to minimize the risk of higher verdicts.
